

what would the American public do if CBS decided to interrupt normal broadcasts to air Fahrenheit-911, in-full, just days before the election? How is it possible... in a day where there are numerous media watch-dog groups, where the media is belated as being "liberally biased", where Dan Rather is heavily criticized for airing a news report that attempts to prove George W. Bush never showed up for Duty... fails to prove it without a reasonable doubt & is forced to apologize for the mistake, yet recently Sinclair Broadcasting is allowed to air an obviously "Conservatively-biased" HOUR-long movie in Prime-Time days before the election that attempts to DISCREDIT John F. Kerry's service in Vietnam (how did public discourse get so low?), & fails to prove it's lack-of evidence in anyway credible (just like the swift-boat attack adds), while actually CLASSIFYING it's "movie" as "news"! (Rather than political commercial.) This is incredible that the FCC, our Country's MAIN media watchdog / oversight branch, has done nothing about this. It is illegal to use a news broadcast - one of the most sacred and valuable of our institutions - to slander a political leader in such a way during a supposed "news-broadcast". I believe that not only should you crackdown on the 527 slander machines that disallow important public discourse and replace it with mudslinging, but more important their should be a fine (like there are for obscenities i.e. Janet Jackson etc...) for reporting something in a NEWS broadcast that can be proven factually incoherent. How are the American people to be properly informed? If the News broadcasts they depend on are tainted with partisanship? Otherwise we are headed to a day where you have "liberal" news shows & "conservative" news shows and no one gets outside there own narrow-minded box. Bad for democracy to say the least. JUST THE FACTS Sir. Thank you. Concerned-don't know-who to trust anymore-American.
